Put the spices in the glass jar and fill the jar with the remaining coconut oil. Leave for 12 hours. Once the 12 hours are up, place your jar of coconut oil on a plate or place your jar into the fridge. This step can take up to 24 hours. You can now use the coconut oil. Take the jar and place in a bowl filled with cold water. Stir the jar constantly. This will help the oil to separate from the water and to easily be scooped out. How to use coconut oil: Apply coconut oil directly to your skin by using a pump or spoon. For a massage, you can take 1/2 teaspoon of coconut oil and warm it in your hands. Massage your body with this warmed oil. Use it as a cooking oil and add it to your dishes. Some other uses are: To replace the cooking oil in your deep fryer To use as a base oil in your salad dressings To use as an amazing massage oil on your body

How to Make Cacao Butter

The idea of making cacao butter may seem daunting. However, the process is super simple and the end result is perfectly delicious. Put the milk and vanilla pods in a heatproof container and heat over a heat-proof bowl filled with simmering water. If you do not have a heat-proof bowl, you can place your milk and vanilla pods in a saucepan and heat over a saucepan filled with simmering water. Keep stirring the milk until the butter separates from the milk. This may take anywhere from 10-30 minutes. Once the butter has been separated from the milk, take the milk and the vanilla pods out of the heat-proof bowl and place in a high-powered blender. Blend on high for 5 minutes. Do not stop the blender until 5 minutes has passed or the butter will melt down and become too liquid. Strain the mixture through a fine-mesh sieve into a heatproof container. Place the container in the fridge. Let the butter harden for 24 hours. Use the butter. Store leftovers in an airtight container in the fridge.

Quality Assurance Your Family's Health And Safety Quality assurance is an integral part of any process where a product is to be used by the public. For dairy manufacturing, the products we sell are for human consumption, but the standards of hygiene and safety must be as high as those in the commercial world. For dairy products, the United States Department of Agriculture is responsible for the production and sale of milk, and the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is responsible for the sale and marketing of all other dairy products. These standards set up procedures for the safety, nutrition, and quality of all dairy products. Our companies are licensed to operate under these standards. 1. The milk collection and testing is carefully checked for contaminants, including pathogens. The milk is then either pasteurized or sterilized to kill any harmful bacteria that may be present.

2. A pasteurization process is then applied to ensure the milk is as safe as possible for consumption. The milk is then cooled to 56 degrees Fahrenheit to kill any bacteria that may still be present.
3. The milk is then transported to a dairy plant where the pasteurization and cooling procedures are completed.
4. The milk is then tested for its pH, temperature, and the concentration of fats, proteins, minerals, carbohydrates, and lactose.
5. The milk is then bottled, labeled, and delivered to the customers.
6. Each month, milk samples are tested at the manufacturing facility. These tests consist of a physical examination of the milk for bacteria, antibiotic residues, and salt content. Milk samples are also tested for contamination from soil, water, or air, including specific pathogenic bacteria. This ensures a safe and reliable supply of milk for human consumption. 7. All packaging materials used in the process of manufacturing the products are monitored for a wide range of safety and quality issues. In addition, a full range of tests are conducted to
