Some of the new tools and new features from the consumer version were not present in the CC student editions. One of the tools is the integration of brushes and patterns into the tools palette. Previously, those tools were only available in the Brushes and Patterns menu. The search function is also limited to the CC editions. Still, the CC versions are a great way to test all of the tools with real-world images, file types, and editing processes in play. Note, however, a few of the tools are not available in the CC edition. Discussed in the next section, these tools are only accessible in the CC edition: The new Softproof Modifier automatically creates profiles for you - rather than having to go through the Modify→ Adjust Lighting soft proofing step for each protected image, you can just press a button. You can use up to five different areas on each image that you want to show the impact of the lighting changes, even if there aren't interest areas in the image. Lightroom also now has real-time processing while saving. This means that is no longer necessary to wait until the image is saved, then open the files in Photoshop to perform adjustments, then save the image as a JPEG again. The adjustment is now done in-camera and allows you to save any changes in-camera. Lightroom can also choose the best settings for you based on content and brightness/contrast, instead of being limited to the USE ALL LIGHTING. In addition, while saving, Lightroom will choose the best color profile to apply for the scene, based on content type.

What It Does: The Fill tool, originally called the Brush tool, fills any solid area with the color of your choice. It's great for solid backgrounds or coloring large areas. It can also be used to apply patterns to your images. How do I make a brush so it fills an entire object with black?

Fill Brushes: Locate and select the image.

- Select [object] tool from the [object] tool button (where [object] is painted on the image).
- While the [object] tool is selected, change the color of the brush tool to black to make a black brush.
- After you've created a black brush, all you have to do is click on an area of the image where you want to fill with black.

Fill tool Where do I find the Fill Motiff?

Fill Image: Locate and select the image. The Stroke tool can create a beveled border around a shape, just like in a real tattoo. You select a certain area of the image you'd like to decorate and then click the Stroke tool. There you can define how wide, long, sharp, or soft that border is. You can also have it changeover to a filled border in the gradient gradient tool. The Gradient tool can be used to create a smooth, curved border. The Gradient tool also lets you create a gradient, or mix of colors, changing the stroke as you go. The selection tool is another important tool in Photoshop. You click and drag to create a selection. When you're done, you can click the Marquee tool, which creates a selection that is editable. You can then use the Photo Selection tool to adjust the selection, or move, resize, or delete parts of it. The Brush tool can be used to paint on top of the currently selected object. This is helpful when you have metal or other materials you want to add to your artwork. The Brush is great for showing off the bright colors of a tattoo. The Size tool can be used to change the size of your selection. 933d7f57e6
